WHAT DOES THIS ORDER MEAN?

This means that a federal judge found ICE's systemic response to the COVID-19 pandemic to be systemically deficient.

The judge found that ICE's response to the spread of COVID-19 was objectively deliberately indifferent in violation of the U.S. Constitution and federal disability law.

The judge ordered ICE to establish a process to do the following:

- Review all people in ICE custody to identify and track people with relevant Risk Factors (discussed further below) within 10 days of the date the order was issued on April 20, 2020 or within five days of their detention (whichever is later);
- Undergo custody redeterminations for any detained people with Risk Factors. This means that they will review whether people with Risk Factors may be adequately protected from COVID-19 infection in detention or whether they must be released because ICE cannot adequately protect them based on their individual vulnerabilities;
- Update their internal protocol for responding to the pandemic to better protect people who remain in detention from COVID-19 infection; and
- Ensure that the requirements of this order be implemented at every detention facility across the nation, regardless of whether the facility is operated directly by ICE, local authorities, or private companies that have contracted with ICE.

WHO DOES THIS APPLY TO?

This order applies to all people in ICE detention who have Risk Factors that make them particularly vulnerable to COVID-19 infection.

This includes people who are over the age of 55, who are pregnant, or have health conditions or disabilities including:

- Chronic health conditions, such as: Heart disease (congestive heart failure, history of myocardial infarction, history of cardiac surgery); High blood pressure (hypertension); Chronic respiratory disease (asthma, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease including chronic bronchitis or emphysema, or other pulmonary diseases); Diabetes; Cancer; Liver disease; Kidney disease;
- Autoimmune diseases (psoriasis, rheumatoid arthritis, systemic lupus erythematosus);
- Severe psychiatric illness;
- History of organ transplantation; and
- HIV/AIDS

This order applies to everyone with Risk Factors held in ICE detention (including jails and private facilities), regardless of the reason for their detention or whether ICE says it is mandatory.

This order applies to all people in ICE detention with Risk Factors regardless of whether they have already submitted requests for bond or parole, have petitioned for habeas relief, have requested other relief, or have had any of the previously mentioned requests denied.

WHAT ACTIONS CAN I TAKE BASED ON THIS CASE?

Under this order, everyone with a Risk Factors is entitled to a Fraihat custody redetermination.

This means that even if you have already filed a request for humanitarian parole or habeas petition, you may submit a separate request for a Fraihat custody redetermination to the Field Office Director where you are detained. Refer to the attached templates for examples of such a request.

WHAT HAPPENS IF I DON'T GET RELEASED AFTER MY FRAIHAT CUSTODY REDETERMINATION?

If you request a Fraihat custody redetermination and are denied release, you are still a subclass member and this order still grants you certain protections in detention.

You, a family member/community member, or a lawyer can follow up to ask why the request was denied and get more information. Templates and instructions for doing that follow-up are linked on the “Submitting a Fraihat Request” page.

WHAT ABOUT THE APPEAL?

The government appealed this emergency order, and in November 2021, the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the order should be overturned. However, a ‘mandate’ has not been issued yet, so the emergency order is still in effect. The earliest the mandate will be issued is June 12, 2022. When the mandate is issued, Fraihat custody redeterminations may no longer be granted. Until then, they are still being processed, so please submit your request as soon as possible.
