Re: End the U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Use of Private, For-Profit Immigration Detention Facilities

Dear Secretary Johnson:

The 344 undersigned organizations call on the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) to end its reliance on private prison companies to detain immigrants. While we understand that you have announced the creation of a subcommittee of the Homeland Security Advisory Council to review the use of privatized immigration detention, it is already clear that DHS must follow the lead of the Department of Justice (DOJ) in severing ties with private prison contractors.

Even more so than the Bureau of Prisons (BOP), Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) has become deeply entangled with private prison companies, which now operate the facilities in which 73% of all detained immigrants are held.¹ This relationship has been disastrous for immigrants, as well as for American taxpayers, who pay more than $2 billion each year² to maintain the detention system. In fact, contracts held by private prison companies are some of the most expensive, and often take advantage of the federal government, as is the case with the detention center for families in Dilley, Texas, which costs U.S. taxpayers $20 million each month regardless of how many people are detained.³

Detention facilities operated by private prison companies have repeatedly been the site of abuse and mistreatment. Recent investigations into deaths in detention facilities have found that inadequate medical care at privately-operated detention facilities contributed to numerous deaths. These include: Evalin-Ali Mandza who died after staff at a GEO Group facility in Colorado waited nearly an hour to call 911 after Mr. Mandza began experiencing chest pain⁴ and Manuel Cota-Domingo who died after an eight hour delay in transferring him to the emergency room by staff at the Corrections Corporation of America (CCA) Eloy facility in Arizona.⁵ In fact, Eloy is by far the deadliest detention facility in the country, with 14 deaths since 2004.⁶

These failings are exacerbated by the inability of ICE to provide proper oversight for its contractors. The ineffective inspections process ICE uses has consistently failed to identify and correct problems inside these facilities.⁷ Further, the vast majority of ICE facility contracts do not include any robust penalty provisions. This incentivizes private companies to minimize facility costs by rationing basic necessities for detained individuals, including medical care. Even when severe deficiencies are discovered, ICE has not terminated contracts or used available penalties, but rather continued to send immigrants to be held in unsafe conditions.⁸ Even former ICE senior officials have expressed concern about the relationship between the companies and ICE, and the quality of privately-operated facilities.⁹

These well-documented concerns have resulted in the California State Legislature's passage of the Dignity Not Detention Act, S.B. 1289, to limit its own municipalities' involvement in private immigration detention contracting.¹⁰ In addition, President Obama's own party pledged in its 2016 platform to "close private prisons and detention centers."¹¹

Most importantly, ICE's reliance on private prison companies has enabled the huge expansion of immigration detention over the last decade, and ending that relationship will require ICE to significantly decrease the number of people who are needlessly detained each year. ICE should start by reversing recent policy changes that have driven up detention numbers, including the expansion of family detention and the insistence on detaining many asylum-seekers—including those who, by the government's own measure, are likely to win their cases—for the duration of their court proceedings.

Rather than directing the Advisory Council subcommittee to consider whether or not to stop contracting with private prison companies, the answer to which is clear, we encourage you to use the Advisory Council to create an action plan to end ICE's entanglement with private prison companies as quickly as possible, and to close down the most dangerous and mismanaged facilities immediately. The subcommittee should consult with community stakeholders and directly affected people when developing its plan. You should also direct ICE to freeze any Requests for Information (RFIs), Requests for Proposal (RFPs), solicitations, and contract renewals for detention facilities during the course of this examination.

It is clear that privately run facilities are unaccountable and unsafe. We urge you to swiftly end ICE's use of these dangerous facilities.
