CRCL Leads ICCT Call Following Sikh Temple Shooting in Wisconsin

Statement by Secretary Napolitano on Shooting in Wisconsin — August 6, 2012 "Yesterday's tragedy in Wisconsin is deeply saddening. The Department of Homeland Security will continue to provide any support necessary to the ongoing investigation. Our thoughts and prayers go out to those impacted by this tragedy, the Sikh community, and especially the family and friends of those killed or wounded."

On August 6, 2012, CRCL conducted an Incident Community Coordination Team (ICCT) call following the shooting at a Sikh Gurdwara in Oak Creek, Wisconsin. During the call, leaders from Sikh, Hindu, Jewish, Muslim, and interfaith communities and organizations discussed the shooting with senior government officials from the White House Office of Public Engagement, Department of Justice (DOJ) Civil Rights Division, DOJ Community Relations Service, Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) Counterterrorism Division, DHS Office of Infrastructure Protection, and DHS Center for Faith-based & Neighborhood Partnerships.

More than 100 participants from across the country joined the ICCT call, which lasted for more than an hour. Government officials shared information about response activities and resources available to communities to promote safety and security in places of worship.

Community leaders expressed concerns and offered suggestions ranging from how government can increase efforts to improve security at local and community levels to opportunities for senior Administration officials to show solidarity with diverse interfaith community partners.

The ICCT nationwide call is the only tool of its kind available for rapid-incident communications between the federal government and diverse communities in the aftermath of an incident of national significance. The ICCT is chaired by the CRCL Officer.

Secretary Napolitano Hosts Second Annual DHS Iftar Dinner

In August, Secretary Napolitano hosted the second annual DHS Iftar dinner bringing together Muslim community members, international partners, and federal, state and local officials.

During the dinner, Secretary Napolitano delivered remarks highlighting the Department's collaboration with Muslim-American communities to make our nation safe, secure and more resilient.

"Communities of faith have been one of our most steadfast allies in our efforts to secure our nation and combat violent extremism," said Secretary Napolitano. "DHS is committed to continuing to work with these communities to address threats that endanger the safety and security of our nation and all communities of faith."

CRCL Develops New Somali Cultural Awareness Training for Law Enforcement

As part of its continued engagement and countering violent extremism (CVE) efforts within diverse communities, CRCL recently developed a new cultural awareness training course, "Somali Cultural Training: Community, Culture and Religion." The course was created to meet the specific needs of law enforcement to engage more effectively with Somali-American communities and develop more effective community policing strategies. In addition, the course provides insight on cultural dynamics within the Somali community and geopolitical issues, best practices for partnering with the community and "cultural do's and don'ts" when interacting with all members of the community, including women and youth in particular.

Since July, CRCL representatives have delivered the new training to approximately 300 state and local law enforcement officers, DHS officials and other federal partners in San Diego, Seattle and Minneapolis. The training has been well-received by participants who have requested additional trainings in the future.

To request this and other CRCL community engagement trainings, email CommunityEngagement@hq.dhs.gov.

CRCL Participates in White House Hispanic Community Action Summits

Over the past several months, the White House Office of Public Engagement and the White House Initiative for Educational Excellence for Hispanics have met with Hispanic communities in cities across the country to build relationships and engage in conversations about core issues that are critical to the Latino community like education, immigration, jobs, civil rights, the economy and health care among others.

CRCL representatives have participated in several of the summits, where DHS polices and activities were discussed among participants. At the most recent summit, representatives from U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services shared information about the Department's new deferred action process for young people who are low immigration enforcement priorities. CRCL is in the process of organizing follow up meetings in response to concerns raised in immigration-related sessions in Phoenix, Durham, Los Angeles, and Philadelphia. These meetings focus on addressing DHS programs and the protections afforded under our nation's civil rights laws.
